July Letter

Dear Friends,

As I sit down to write this in June I am about to go off on a week's retreat to Iona, which is one of my favourite places in the world. I love going there for many reasons.

First of all there is the long journey there. Iona is a tiny island off the Isle (island) of Mull in the North West of Scotland, involving a journey by car or train to Oban and then two ferries. Because of this period of journeying, there is for me a sense of allowing all the things that usually fill my mind to fall away so that I arrive with the sense of feeling released from the everyday concerns, ready to be still and alone with God.

Then there is the history of the place. This was the island to which St Columba and his fellow monks came by coracle (tiny circular boat) from Ireland in AD 563. Here they founded a monastery which became one of the most important in Britain and from which the gospel was taken to many other places in Scotland and northern England, notably Northumbria by St. Aidan. The Ionian monks spent countless hours transcribing and illuminating the Book of Kells, a Latin translation of the bible that now resides in Trinity College, Dublin. The abbey is 13th century and was the focal point of the Benedictine monks who worshipped there. The abbey and the standing crosses are still there, bearing witness to centuries of Christian worship.

Then there is the sheer beauty of this little island. The beaches have white sand and multi-coloured pebbles, and (when it's sunny!) the water is turquoise. The views across the bay to the western tip of Mull are stunning. It's not unusual to see basking sharks and seals off the northern shores, and a wide variety of birds.

At this time of year the sound of the corncrakes can be heard, especially near where I will be staying. There are wild yellow iris, bog cotton and marsh orchid along the paths and in some of the wetter sections of the machair grassland. Being so far north and close to the summer solstice means the evenings remain light (unless it's cloudy!) long after sunset with a quality of light that sort of glows. The abbey and standing crosses look especially beautiful, silhouetted against the sky. I have a tattoo of the one that stood immediately outside the abbey – the cross of St. John the Evangelist.

Best of all there is the worship. The abbey is now home to the Iona Community, a group drawn from many nations who come and live together and host retreats and conferences. They lead the morning and evening worship at the abbey using liturgy which follows the original Celtic Christian rhythms of St Columba. I really enjoy this pattern of worship, which is authorised by the Church of England for our use. On 29th September I will be using Iona liturgy in our service of Evening Prayer service at 6pm.

I look forward to seeing you upon my return, and pray that you too will enjoy a time this summer when you can be still and alone with God, whether that's in your back garden, this country or overseas.

God bless,
Heather

Time Choices

(Lk 10:38-42)

Martha is distracted,
too busy
preparing for the needs of the day.
Not enough time... not enough time.

Mary is focused,
taking time to meet the
needs of the heart.
Sitting still,
seeing through the
paraphernalia of every day
with a new clarity that changes her world.
Mary listens to Jesus.
She chooses life.

There is time...there is time.
We all have our life time.
What will we choose?

Sayings of our elders

Hostility:

Hostility comes from fear.

In time, resentment becomes hate.

Humility:

The fruits of humility are love and peace.

Be very humble, for man's destiny is the worm or fire..

Wisdom begets humility.

Hunger:

When hunger comes through the door, love flees through the window.

Those who are sated don't believe those who are hungry.

Love and hunger can't live together.

Husbands:

When a man is too good for this world, it's too bad for his wife.

The man who marries for money earns it.

Ideas:

Those on the other side of the fence have different ideas.

Idleness:

The hardest work of all is to do nothing.

The Olympic Games

This month sees the start of the Olympic Games in Paris. In describing the Christian life as a marathon race, the writer of Hebrews (12:1-2) challenges us to finish well.

‘throw off everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles’ (1)

As in a normal race, we have to get rid of any burdens that weigh us down (eg possessions, worries, what others think of us) and besetting sins (wrong habits or attitudes). We can cast our burdens on the Lord (Ps 55:22) and be assured of His forgiveness (1 John 1:9).

‘run with perseverance the race marked out for us’ (1)

The Christian life is like a marathon not a sprint race, which calls for endurance. The course is marked out for us, as we all have a unique race to run, with its opportunities and difficulties. God knows our path and will provide all that we need to complete the race.

‘fix our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfecter of our faith’ (2)

The runner keeps their focus on the finishing line and avoids all distractions. Our focus is on Jesus, who has run the race before us (‘author’), but is the one who can show us how to finish well (‘perfecter’).

We are also surrounded by a ‘great cloud of witnesses’ (1). These are God’s people, both past and present, who are cheering us on!

During the 1992 Barcelona Olympics, the British athlete Derek Redmond was running in the 400 metres semi-finals. About 250 metres from the finish his hamstring tore, and he fell to the ground in pain. However, his father ran on to the track to support him in completing the race. Let’s not forget that whatever we face, God is there beside to enable us to finish the race!

Canon Paul Hardingham looking forward to Paris...

God in Music

‘Glorious the song when God’s the theme’: J S Bach’s joy and dance

In 1956 a small novel by a German writer, Johannes Rüber, appeared in an English translation. It was called 'Bach and the Heavenly Choir' and tells of Pope Gregory XIX's desire to elevate Bach to the ranks of the saints. To bring together the Lutheran bishop and his own cardinals, he organises a great Bach festival in Rome. At the festival he announces his plan and the reasoning behind it: that in J S Bach 'faith has become music.'

In that realisation lies the grace and glory of Bach's achievement, and why we treasure his works today. The irony is that the bulk of his music was never published in his lifetime. The six Brandenburg Concerti, beautifully copied out and offered, were never performed and the music put in a cupboard. His music in all probability would have been lost for ever had it not been for a young Mendelssohn, who just happened to find a manuscript of the St Matthew Passion in his music teacher's house. He recognised it for its brilliancy and beauty and ordered a massive search to unearth the decaying manuscripts.

So much of Bach's music was inspired by his joy in believing. Just consider one of the six motets, 'Jesu, meine Freude' (Jesus, my joy). It was probably written for a memorial service in July 1723. In his other works, Freude, or 'joy', releases new movement. In this motet, the word is kept within the constraints of the chorale melody that acts as a framework for the motet. The word that brings a joyous release is Geist, Spirit – when it appears, then each voice joins in the chase as notes spill over the page and into our ears, proclaiming the inspiration of God's Spirit in human life.

This spirit of joy helps us realise that what makes Bach's music so vital and rewarding is that total sense of movement and dance. Wilfred Mellers wrote a book 'Bach and the Dance of God,' showing how so much of Bach's music is dance-inspired from lively gavottes to more stately sarabandes that can be heard in both the instrumental and choral music. Widor, like Bach a great organist, wrote that 'For me Bach is the greatest of preachers.'

And what does he preach? That in the end, all is dance and life in the power of God's Spirit. In 'Jesu, meine Freude' as in all his music we hear and relish the movement and pulse of his compositions that open up for us a world where all is joy and dance. That is how Dante ended his vision of Paradise, where everything is movement and dance, and what moves the sun and the other stars is love.

Book Review

Shaped by the Spirit – being formed into an outward-focused people

By Kate Pocklington, SPCK, £10.00

Shun self-help in favour of spiritual-help and become the other-focussed disciple that Jesus is inviting you to be. In recent years, the Church in the West has witnessed a growing hunger to engage in spiritual disciplines that help us become more like Jesus. And yet, if our practices cause us to look inwards without looking outwards, then we can unwittingly distance ourselves from Him instead.

Jesus was inherently other-focussed, and in this immensely practical book, Kate Pocklington invites us to explore why being formed by the Spirit is only the beginning of the picture. .

Recycling & Green Living Tips

Don't take pebbles from the beach

Tempting as it is to take pebbles and shells from the beach to improve your rockery or smarten up your garden - do not. The presence of shells and pebbles on a beach helps to reduce coastal erosion which is increasing with climate change. The UK Coast Protection Act states it is unlawful to remove any natural material from a beach no matter the amount. Cumberland council are now going to fine people as much as £1,000. Others may follow.

Make sure you recycle batteries

So many people are not recycling batteries or electrical/electronic items that contain them but are putting them in their landfill waste. This has led to so many fires on the recycling lorries and at the waste centres. All shops which sell batteries must have somewhere to recycle them so check and use that for individual ones. Mobile phones, ear pods and vapes are being put in landfill waste but this must change. The local recycling centres have electronic waste containers. Sainsburys also recycle some electronics:

Recycling electronic items in-store:

If you have an old electronic item, we can safely recycle these items in-store, for free, with the following guidelines:

- Our store must sell a similar item to the one you're recycling
- You have purchased a replacement item from us within the last 28 days
- You can provide proof of purchase
- Only one item can be exchanged when purchasing a new one
- Electrical equipment that has a crossed-out wheelie bin symbol can be recycled
- If your old product doesn't have this symbol, we'll still accept it as part of an equivalent purchase and recycle it to the best of our ability.

By recycling electrical and electronic equipment and diverting it from landfill, you're helping prevent the lead and the other harmful toxins they contain from polluting the soil and water. These toxins are harmful to our environment, wildlife and also detrimental to human health. This service is being offered in accordance with The Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Regulations (2013).

From providing drinking water to leaving grass to grow, here are some easy ways to help wildlife this summer

Prayer for July 2024

Father,

Thank you for summertime, when thoughts turn to holidays and relaxation.

July is a month of endings for many; the ending of the school or college year and for some a moving on to the next stage of education or work. Often, there is uncertainty or trepidation about the future.

Whatever stage of life we are at, whatever season of the year it is, we can feel uncertain and concerned in a world which seems increasingly secular and confusing.

Remind us Lord, of Your promise to be with us always, every step of every way, when we put our trust in You, through Jesus.

Thank you that in the ups and downs of life, You never change. You are the rock on which we stand securely, eternally. Help us to move forward confidently, trusting in that truth.

Thank you, Lord.

In Jesus' name.

Amen.
